

Self-Published Book Consignment Program

For self-published local writers or the agents of writers with small, independent publishing houses

If you are interested in having Book No Further carry your book, please read the details in full, complete the application, and submit it with a copy of your book.

Program Details

- Books must meet binding/printing standards: book title & author name on spine, quality binding (no spiral bound), must have been proofed, and have an ISBN
- All books will be read, in part or full, by staff member or designee before approval. Decisions are made on a book-by-book basis and are final.
- We do not accept books to read for the program without an application
- Books accepted into our inventory will remain on the shelves for 60 days, in the section we think likely to bring the most sales.
- Author will provide five (5) books, initially, to the bookseller for consignment sale. For each book that sells, Book No Further will retain 40 percent of sale price; author will receive 60 percent, according to industry standard.
- Book No Further will send the author a check by the 15th of each month for sales made in the previous month.
- Bookseller may contact the author to restock during the consignment period.
- When the consignment period is over, it is at the discretion of Book No Further to renew the agreement on a month-to-month basis. If the agreement is not renewed, the Book No Further will return the remaining books
- Bookseller is not responsible for damaged or stolen goods and author will absorb the losses.
